Another example from the South Carolina Archive in 1770.

The reason for the South Carolina Archive in 1770 was the need for a repository of the colony's records. It was established in 1770 to collect and preserve the records of the colony, which included not only official documents but also private papers. The archive was intended to serve as a central repository for the colony's historical records, providing a means for future generations to access and study the past. Over time, the archive has grown to include a vast collection of documents, ranging from legal records to personal letters and diaries.

De ces faits énoncés, l'adjudant commandant trouve que son enquête a porté sur des faits qui ne sont pas des faits de crimes. Il s'agit donc plutôt d'une enquête de police qui ne concerne pas d'affaires criminelles.

Dans le cas présent, l'adjudant commandant estime que l'enquête a été menée de manière appropriée et de manière conforme aux règles en vigueur.

En conclusion, l'adjudant commandant recommande de fermer l'enquête sans poursuites. Il estime que les faits énoncés ne constituent pas des crimes et que l'enquête a été menée de manière appropriée.
